James D. Gwartney was professor emeritus of economics at Florida State University. He is the coauthor of a bestselling introductory textbook "Economics: Private and Public Choice" and is well known for his work on measuring economic freedom from 1999 to 2000. He was the chief economist of the Joint Economic Committee of the U.S. Congress. Mitchell List and Kurt Schuler ask him about his youth as a Kansas farm boy, applying economic principles to raising children, his meeting with Vladimir Putin, going blind, his reflections on teaching and his academic and popular writings. His wife, Amy, also participated for part of the interview. This interview took place on February 10, 2023, and was first issued in August 2023. Dr. Gwartney died of pancreatic cancer on January 8, 2024.

The book explores the relationship between cultural heritage and local economic development by introducing the original idea that one possible mediator between the two can be identified as creativity. The book econometrically verifies this idea and demonstrates that cultural heritage through its inspirational role on different creative talents generates an indirect positive effect on local economic development. These results justify important new policy recommendations in the field of cultural heritage.
